

The market remains tight overall, with wholesale prices near record levels in some cases despite being outside typical peak demand season. Breasts and wings are strong, but legs reached a record high this week and whole birds made a new high two weeks ago. Consumers' value seeking and retail feature activity have increased demand for these historically less expensive items, which has driven their prices higher compared to both previous years and other cuts. TRQ utilization is strong compared to historical norms, and storage stocks were drawn down by 3.5 Mkg during February, mostly due to further processed items and legs. Note for comparison purposes that February 2024 contained a leap day; adjusting for this, 2025 slaughter to the end of Februarv is up by 2.4%.
